

The Perfect Bridge over Summer Break for Schools, for Parents & for Students

It's common knowledge in education — especially special education — that when school lets out, student gains backslide, skills decline, and learning comes to a standstill.

But now “summer break” doesn't have to mean a break in progress. With TalkPath Live's private-pay services, parents can ensure that their children continue to receive their speech-language, occupational, or physical therapy year-round — one-on-one, at home, with their regular therapist.

Together, we can keep the momentum of therapeutic gains advancing ... flowing only forward, like a river, consistently and continuously.
